Those hot August Nights are upon us and evening riding couldn't be better.

It's been a good and mostly dry riding season so far, so cross your fingers and hope it stays that way. With the holidays almost half way done its like, a newsletter?

The only thing to report is that there are lots of people coming out to the Sunday breakfast and rides. The laughter and good humored ribbing is great to see and experience. The rides have been varied and good for all involved. The nice thing about lots of participants is that everyone finds someone who rides the same as them and you either pull into the meeting spot a few minutes before or a few minutes after the main group.

Riding in large groups is not for everyone and with this many riders it gives you flexibility to do your thing.
